

Will Carter's music rides on a silent but unmistakable undercurrent. It nourishes his songs with a sense that he writes from experience. It nurtures an impression that he was taught from Day One to work hard with the hand you're dealt and pursue your passion only when you know you have the knowledge you need to succeed.

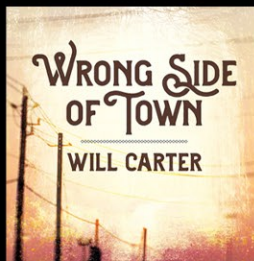

Inspired by Mark Chesnutt, John Michael Montgomery, Garth Brooks, Diamond Rio and others, he turned heads as a country prodigy, making his stage debut at age 3 at the Sealy Fantasy of Lights Festival, taking 1st prize in a talent contest at age 9, and then gigging at fairs, festivals and parties by age 11. There are few performers today, in any genre, that can match Carter's blend of native talent, determination, and drive.

Carter's 2019 debut album, Good Bad Idea, signaled the formal launch of a music career that's capturing the allegiance of both young and old, those who savor the vibe of an old-school dance hall and those who just can't wait for their next

Carter's first release of 2022 is a single entitled "Wrong Side of Town." The song has been a fan favorite ever since Carter introduced it into his live set several years ago. Texas Music writes, "Carter's crystal-clear vocals are backed by slick, Red Dirt country filled with fiddles and pedal steel." About the artist the Houston Press writes, "Will Carter has done everything required to craft a solid music career. He started young, sang his heart out, worked hard, wrote good songs and milked goats."

The Will Carter Band is currently on tour delivering high-energy performances at top music venues, fairs and festivals across Texas and nationwide. Don't pass on your next opportunity to experience a Will Carter Band show.
